

Contiki ECM eContracting

Professionalize and secure the contract negotiations with your counterparties

Contract negotiations can be frustrating and time consuming, with different documents and several revisions before settling the final agreement with your counterparties. Contiki ECM eContracting provides online collaboration that's accessible by your counterparties during the whole contract lifecycle. You no longer have to use project room software or handle multiple storage locations during the contract negotiations.

Contiki ECM eContracting is a web portal that enables you to collaborate with your counterparties during the entire contract's lifecycle. The portal lets you share contract related documents for review, drafting or finalization of contract documents – while conserving interaction history with discussion threads, version control and audit trails. You can share any kind of documents such as minutes of meetings, emails, drawings, official letters etc.

During the drafting phase to the finalization of the negotiations, it is often important to issue feedback and comments on any changes. The discussion thread feature follows the documents throughout the contract's lifecycle and is independent of document versions. Interactive collaboration with your counterparties ensures good quality and documentation, conserves the history of interaction and communication and makes the drafting process more efficient.

Variation orders requests (VORs) can be issued by your counterparties through the eContracting portal. Internal Contiki ECM users will be alerted and find the request ready for handling with cost estimates, documents and descriptions. You can easily group several requests, and start your negotiations to agree upon the variation orders. The documentation and comments will automatically be part of the variation order.
